

Handling The Holidays In a Non-LGBTQ+ Affirming Environment

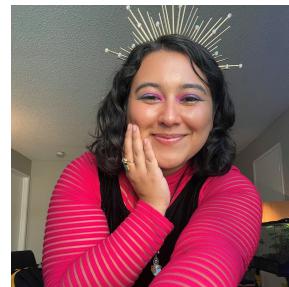

Presented by Mental Health America and Sutter Health

Kat McIntosh (they/them)
Mental Health America

Phi Regis (they/them)
Human Rights Campaign

Marissa Howdershelt (they/them)
Student Advocate

Key Takeaways

- Regardless of how your family responds to you coming out, you're deserving of safety, security, and love. If that's not what you're getting at home, look for opportunities to create boundaries for yourself and uphold those. This might look like only visiting for one holiday per year, or finding your own place to stay nearby so that you can spend time together while also having your own space. Aim to balance giving yourself what you need while also honoring your desire to connect with your family of origin.
- Self-care can be as simple or as complicated as you want it to be – check in with yourself on your energy level and how you can accommodate that. Things like sleeping in, enjoying a favorite snack, or catching up on your favorite TV show are low-effort ways to show yourself some love. Journaling or exercising take a bit more effort, but spending that time and energy on yourself might be exactly what you need.
- Chosen families have a long and important history in the LGBTQ+ community - you can love your friends in the same way that we are told to love our biological family. If you're in a good spot yourself but have friends who find this time of year challenging, be proactive about checking in with them, asking what kind of support they'd like, and following up.

Additional Resources

Online Mental Health Screening (MHA) - www.mhascreening.org

IAMNOTALONE (MHA) - www.iamnotalone.mhanational.org

LGBTQ+ Mental Health hub (MHA) - www.mhanational.org/lgbtq

QTBIPOC Mental Health hub (HRC) - www.hrc.org/resources/qtbi poc-mental-health-and-well-being

Coming Out Center (HRC) - www.hrc.org/explore/topic/coming-out

New Deal for Youth Policy Platform on Healing and Well-Being - www.newdealforyouth.org/our-issues/#healing

The Trevor Project - www.thetrevorproject.org

For immediate support,
call 1-866-488-7386 or text 678-678
to reach a trained crisis counselor.

Watch the recording at mhanational.org/webinars.